

SHOOTING FOR SHOTS: Hoping to draw more productions here, Miami-Dade commissioners are pulling for state legislation that would create a tax-based filming incentive. Florida's existing program is funded at $10.8 million this year, but many say it's not enough to keep up with other states. Local commissioners, following Bruno Barreiro's lead, agreed last week to urge Tallahassee legislators to transform the program from a cash-reimbursement model to a tax-credit model.